Dear Destination Maternity Team,

I wanted to provide you with an update on our upcoming Annual Meeting of Stockholders.

This morning the Company issued a press release outlining what the Board views as the clear and compelling reasons for stockholders to vote FOR Destination's slate of incumbent Director candidates – Barry Erdos, Melissa Payner-Gregor, Peter Longo and Pierre-André Mestre – on the WHITE proxy card.

At this point in the Company's evolution – with an experienced and refreshed Board overseeing the execution of a detailed go-forward strategy that is showing results – your Board is excited about the visible path to profitable, long-term growth.

Unfortunately, the Miller Group is resorting to spreading misinformation and innuendo. We know that this can be frustrating and potentially disconcerting.

Please note the following:

- The Miller Group has levied unwarranted personal attacks against our two long-tenured and highly experienced Board members, myself (Melissa) and Barry Erdos, in an effort to distract from the inexperience of its own nominees.
- The Miller Group has attacked the candidacy of Pierre-André Mestre, Chairman of Orchestra-Prémaman, as a Board nominee even after stating publicly less than 2 months ago that the Miller Group and its Nominees "...would support expanding the Board and adding representatives of Orchestra-Prémaman S.A. ("Orchestra") to the Board..."
- The Miller Group touts its "comprehensive strategic business plan". The "plan" lacks specificity and was strongly criticized as such by both leading proxy advisory firms, ISS and Glass Lewis.
- The Miller Group attacks our pay practices. However, in fact, our stockholders have voted in favor of our vote on executive compensation or 'say-on-pay' vote each year since we first began asking the question in 2011. The Company's director and executive compensation structure is heavily weighted toward equity that vests over time, including options and performance-based restricted stock units. This is consistent with public company practices to link pay to performance. While the Miller Group knows this fact, they present the compensation figures in a manner that suggests an actual cash payment when the truth is much different.

We urge you to not to let this information and innuendo distract from the fact that your Board and management team are on the right path.
